The World's Greatest Banker Amassed a Stupendous Fortune by Investing in French Government Bonds When They Were Cheap

Rothschild bought French Bonds when the streets of Paris were running with blood.

He did so against the advice of the Banking Fraternity of the Whole Civilized World of that Days

A Distinguished London Banker said Rothschild was not only crasy, but slated for bankruptcy.

Rothschild commenced buying French Bonds shortly after the outbreak of the Revolution, when they were selling at

He was still buring after eight years of revolution and foreign wars. The bonds were then selling at 7% of par. One year after the end of the Revolution, the same bonds

Seven years later, the bonds were selling at 93%.

Thus Rothschild stood vindicated in his judgment against that of the entire world, and laid the foundation for a fortune, now estimated at between four and five billions

Similar opportunities for profitable investment in French Government Bonds obtain today, but admittedly it is not a matter of common knowledge or understanding.

If you have faith in the survival of the Great European Nations, which, through centuries of constructive effort, beginning long before the discovery of America, have, made our modern civilization possible, and If you have the courage of your convictions

Assuming that the French 5% Lean will be redeemed on January 1st. 1931, and that the normal rate of Exchange will have been restored by that time, the average annual yield of such bonds purchased at today's prices in dollars will be more than 40%, or a total of 400% for the ten years, provided that the coupons are left with the bonds and not cashed except at normal Exchange rates.
